

StarTribune.com

St. Paul lawyer makes list of eco-heroes women in North America." Its Internet address is www.jwa.org.

Paula Goodman Maccabee cited for her strong environmental stance.

By JEFF STRICKLER, Star Tribune

Last update: May 21, 2010 - 3:45 PM

St. Paul lawyer Paula Goodman Maccabee has been named to the Jewish Women's Archive's list of "15 Jewish Women in Environmental Activism."

She was cited for her strong environmental stance while a member of the St. Paul City Council in the early 1990s, her legal representation of the Sierra Club and for serving on the board of directors of Environmental Justice Advocates of Minnesota.

The list is dominated by people from the East and West Coasts. In fact, the only ones not near an ocean are Maccabee and a Kentucky advocate for sustainable farming.

Based in Massachusetts, the nonprofit Jewish Women's Archive is an online service "devoted to making known the stories, struggles, and achievements of Jewish